Projects

Automatic Room Light Controller with Bidirectional Visitor Counter

- Electricity scenario in developing countries like Bangladesh is still not up to the mark. Financial crisis and limitation of natural resources are the major constraint to establish more power plants and upgrade the situation. To avoid all such situations we here are going to present an “Automatic control system for lighting of a single door room with bidirectional people counter”.

Detection of Fake accounts in Twitter using Machine Learning Techniques

- In today's Modern society, social media plays a vital role in everyone's life. The main advantage of online social media is that we can connect to people easily and communicate with them in a better way. On the other hand, they suffer from expanding the number of fake accounts that has been created. In this project, we intend to give a framework using machine learning techniques with which the detection of spam users can be done so that the social life of people can become a little more secure.
